Claims example

Beazley insured a large law firm that was sued for advice arising out of a complicated international tax engagement. The case presented a number of delicate claims management challenges. First, it became apparent to Beazley claims professionals as the case progressed that the solicitor hired by the insured needed significant support. The team identified the issue, located an additional solicitor and coordinated the introduction of this new lawyer to work alongside the original counsel. Second, careful continued management was required from that point forward to ensure this change did not negatively impact our ability to present a strong defensive case. As the case approached trial, there were a number of public relations concerns that came to the fore as a result of certain anticipated trial arguments. Beazley's claims team worked hand in hand with the solicitors, the barrister and representatives of the insured to guide this case from filing to ruling and to manoeuvre through these issues to the eventual successful outcome. The result was a ruling by the court for the insured and, under the UK's "loser pays" system, the recovery from the claimant of over $4 million in fees and costs.

"When an insured is unfortunate enough to suffer a claim, we want to leave them with the feeling that their experience with Beazley was excellent. The strength and depth of the Professions claims team's expertise creates a solid platform for flexible and responsive claims service and informed decision making."
