

Beazley Safeguard Healthcare

Comprehensive risk management and response solutions for healthcare providers.

By its very nature, the provision of healthcare can involve a high degree of physical and often intimate contact between medical staff and patients. Appreciating the sensitivities in such situations, providers seek to afford patients the highest possible degree of privacy and dignity.

While the vast majority of care is delivered in an appropriate and professional manner, instances can emerge where medical staff, patients or others exploit the vulnerabilities of those around them.

Healthcare providers already face numerous challenges in addressing such risks within hospitals and nursing homes, but, given the extent to which healthcare systems are shifting the delivery of care away from such environments towards smaller settings, and even into patients' own homes, the opportunity for inappropriate behaviour can increase.

The need to vet and train staff and to monitor both their behaviour and that of others is more critical than ever. Where allegations are made, a swift and surefooted response is essential – one that addresses the position of the person making the allegation and their family, as well as the broader constituencies of other patients and their families, the healthcare provider's staff, and the communities that the provider serves.

Allegations will often be disseminated very rapidly by traditional and social media and many providers will have little or no experience in dealing with this.

Beazley Safeguard has been designed as a comprehensive insurance, risk management and crisis response program to help healthcare providers and their management address areas of risk in the first instance, and to provide support in dealing with crisis response, communication and management.
