Beazley builds out transition underwriting capability with acquisition of kWh Analytics

March 10, 2026

Beazley, the leading specialty insurer, has reached agreement to acquire kWh Analytics, a US renewable energy MGA.

Beazley believes that the global energy transition is a significant strategic growth opportunity and is focused on underwriting the complex risks that will enable the transition. kWh Analytics will add scalability and enhance Beazley's capabilities in modelling, underwriting and risk management across renewable energy portfolios.

kWh Analytics will be embedded into Beazley's MAP (Marine, Accident & Political) Risks team. Jason Kaminsky, CEO, will report directly to Tim Turner, Group Head of MAP Risks and be a key part of the transition underwriting strategy which is led by Kelly Malynn.

Adrian Cox, CEO of Beazley, said:

"The energy transition represents one of the most significant opportunities for the specialty insurance market. At Beazley, we see transition underwriting as a dynamic, long-term driver of structural growth, with investment in the energy transition projected to reach multiple trillions in the next decade.

"kWh Analytics' reputation as an innovative player in the renewable energy space is well established, and this acquisition reflects our continued investment in the capabilities needed to support our transition clients with solutions to complex risk. I'm excited to work with the fantastic team at kWh Analytics."

Jason Kaminsky, CEO of kWh Analytics, said:

"Joining Beazley represents an exciting new chapter for kWh Analytics. Together, we will accelerate the development of risk products and services that support the energy transition. Beazley’s global reach and commitment to innovation make them the right partner to scale our mission.”

Evercore Partners International LLP acted as sole financial adviser and Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer LLP served as legal adviser to Beazley. McDermott Will & Schulte LLP acted as legal adviser to kWh Analytics.
