Workplace risk in a (post)-pandemic world

February 07, 2023

As businesses and organisations around the globe navigate their way through the ever-changing environment of pandemic-related restrictions and the easing of those restrictions, there is much for them to consider with regards to inviting employees to return to the workplace. With both moral and legal obligations coming to the fore, the associated risks can be interconnected and present in many forms.

In this episode, Sandra Cole, International Cyber Claims Focus Group Leader at Beazley, joins our host to discuss cyber risks associated with hybrid working.

This podcast was originally recorded in December 2021.
