Spotlight on: Cyber and technology risk

October 31, 2022

Is business right to be as confident as it is about its cyber resilience?

Cyber remains the leading technology risk for business leaders but there is also a worrying degree of complacency around active cyber risk management and maintaining resilience as other risks come to the fore.

Our latest research with business leaders about the cyber risks they face and their resilience to them throws a spotlight on how other risk classes may be distracting them from what remains a real and present danger.
