Beazley appoints Brenna Westinghouse as Corporate Head of Strategy

October 30, 2023

Beazley, the leading specialist insurer, has today announced the appointment of Brenna Westinghouse as Corporate Head of Strategy, reporting to Adrian Cox, CEO. She assumes her new role on 1 November 2023, succeeding Rachel Turk, who moves to Lloyd's as its Chief Underwriting Officer.

As leader of the Professions PI book, Ms Westinghouse has already made a significant contribution to Beazley's growth and strategic position across the globe. As Corporate Head of Strategy, she assumes a pivotal role in shaping the strategic priorities for the company, with responsibility for identifying new growth opportunities and ensuring Beazley remains at the forefront of innovation.

Ms Westinghouse brings more than two decades' experience to her new role, most recently as Focus Group Leader, Professions PI within Beazley's Specialty Risks Division in London. She joined Beazley in 2017 after more than a decade at Marsh, where she held a series of senior roles in its international financial and professional lines practice, based in London, UK and Boston, USA.

Adrian Cox, Chief Executive Officer at Beazley, said: "Beazley has an ambitious strategic agenda and Brenna's track record of achievement as a leader of our successful Professional PI business, make her ideally placed to take on the role of Corporate Head of Strategy.

While we celebrate a new milestone for Brenna, I would also like to thank Rachel Turk for her contribution to the success of Beazley as she takes up the role of Chief Underwriting Officer at Lloyd's, where she will no doubt make a lasting contribution to the future of our industry. Both Brenna and Rachel's new roles speak not only to their individual accomplishments, but also to the strength of the talent to which Beazley is home."
